About Sensitivity Training and T-Groups

Laboratory education started with experiments by Kurt Lewin in USA in the mid-1940's. He was greatly influenced by J L Moreno's concept of the encounter and role plays as a technique to understand & change behaviour. What started off as a tool to change standards, attitudes and behaviour of individuals using participative methods and encounter groups, later evolved into a full-fledged methodology called 'T-Group', 'L-Group', 'Sensitivity Training' or 'Laboratory Education'. This method of learning is primarily through experience, and can be more specifically defined as "learning through reflection on doing".

Sensitivity training is a unique approach to understanding oneself and others purely from interacting, observing and reflecting in a direct way, as one really is, in a group setting. The basic understanding is that efficiency, effectiveness and a sense of satisfaction of people and groups depend more often in the manner in which people work together than in their technological skills. The best way to understand this is to examine what is going on in the group, in the present moments which provides rich data for learning.

Sensitivity training is participant centered and the learnings are created by the ways the participants of the Laboratory interact with each other. The goals are relatively simple. It is to contribute towards personal growth of the participant, particularly through increased self-awareness and interpersonal competence. With personal growth comes the ability to understand the group and the organization.

It helps in developing the ability to interact in a more authentic, open and spontaneous fashion, the ability to recognize one's feelings, accept the vulnerability of sharing them and take the risk of becoming fully engaged with another person and/or a group of people. The focus is to encourage responsible risk taking, supportiveness without over-protectiveness and confrontation without destructiveness. The atmosphere is one of 'Enquiry and Discovery'. As the participants spend quality time together, over 4 - 5 days, they create 'an island'.

About ISABS

Founded in 1972, Indian Society for Applied Behavioural Science (ISABS) is a national, voluntary society of behavioural scientists engaged in applying their knowledge and skill to the well-being of persons, organisations, communities and the society at large. Its members work as independent consultants, trainers, counsellors, academicians, human resource development managers and community change agents.

ISABS programmes focus on human processes and aim at helping people to understand them better, and discover more creative and satisfying ways of relating and working.

ISABS utilises group and experience-based learning as its main training method. Experiencing, reflecting, hypothesizing, conceptualising, experimenting, collaborative and non-directive method rather than lectures are the chief ingredients in this process of learning. ISABS also offers programmes to develop professionals capable of facilitating such experience-based learning in organisational and societal contexts.

About Human Process Laboratories

In a human process laboratory, a group of around 10-12 participants work together along with a facilitator to learn about human processes, and in the process discover more about themselves, their strengths, their styles, their interpersonal and group interactions, how they perceive others, and are perceived by others. While this is the primary task, there is no pre-determined agenda and the group uses the 'Here & Now' experience to derive this learning, using each other as a resource. The facilitators help create a climate for such learning.

Basic Laboratory on Human Process (BLHP)

THE BROAD OBJECTIVES INCLUDE

- Enhancing self-awareness
- Becoming aware of your patterns of behaviour and its impact on others
- Discovering behaviors that serve and limit you
- Increasing your ability to understand & manage yourself & your interactions with others thereby leading to building deeper relationships
- Discover your potential to live life meaningfully and effectively

Typically, BLHP participants comprise the following:

- Homemakers, Students, School Teachers & University Faculty
- Journalists, Lawyers, Entrepreneurs,
- Line Managers and Executives
- Marketing, Sales and Client Servicing professionals
- Team or Group Leaders and Project Coordinators
- Professionals in the Quality Domain & ISO supervisors
- HRD, Training, Personnel and Industrial Relations Professionals
- Professionals from Non-Governmental Organizations (NGO),
- Social Service Organizations & Public Sector
- Counselors and Therapists

FOR WHOM

Individuals who are interested in:

- Personal growth, interpersonal learning.
- Discovering their potential for greater effectiveness in relationships.
- Taking the self through a journey of discovery.
- Understanding the dynamics of being & working in the groups.

BENEFITS

Individual Benefits	Organizational Benefits
Self-awareness	The individual becomes aware of her/his emotions, strengths and weaknesses. S/he accurately assesses herself/himself and develops self-confidence to perform organisational tasks.
Leading Self	The individual develops the capacity to effectively manage her/his motives and regulate their behaviours. The payoff for the organisation is an individual potentially with self-control, trustworthiness, conscientiousness, initiative, ability to adapt & effectively influence others
Social awareness	The individual develops the capacity to understand what others say and feel; and why they feel and act as they do. This results in improved empathy, organisational awareness and service orientation.
Social skills	This capacity enables the individual to get desired results from others and reach personal goals. As a result the individual is able to develop others, provide leadership, influence, communicate effectively, becomes a change agent, able to manage conflicts, build bonds, teamwork and collaboration.

OTHER PROGRAMS OFFERED BY ISABS:

Organization Development Certificate Programme (ODCP)

Community Process Facilitation Program (CPFP)

Harvesting the Uncommon - Leadership for New Age

Professional Development Programme (PDP)

THE CONTEXT

In the current global scenario of fast-paced change, two key competencies seem to have become critical for individuals, groups and organizations

- The ability to cope with a high degree of ambiguity and provide leadership amidst uncertainty
- The ability to build work-groups or teams and facilitate effectiveness in human systems

The T-Group Laboratory methodology also called a Human Process Lab, L-Group or Sensitivity Training, focuses on 'unstructured', experiential, non-directive processes of learning. An essential part of the Professional Development Program (PDP) is its contribution to increased self-awareness and understanding and development of group skills that in turn help improve team work and consensual decision-making processes.

The PDP of ISABS is aimed at developing professionals capable of facilitating experience-based learning in groups and organisations. The journey through PDP assists in the development of Professional Members of ISABS, with human process competencies to facilitate self-growth and the understanding of group dynamics, among people who participate in such Human Process Labs.

Through in-depth exposure to process competencies at the individual and group level as well as through practical experience (especially during the internship phase), the PDP participants are supported and expected to acquire competence both in the areas of personal development as well as group development. The participants develop a conceptual base in the field of Applied Behavioural Science through experiential and theory-oriented learning, commitment to human process values and professional ethics of ISABS.

The guidelines have been developed and evolved over the years. Below is an outline of the objectives and procedures of the PDP system of ISABS that is dynamically intended for self-learning and acquiring professional competencies of facilitating group processes.
